Contracts update: Award of WISE processing project offshore West Africa

RSI (AIM:RSI), announced today that it has been awarded a project to process and integrate seismic, CSEM and well data by an existing West Africa customer with a potential total value of over $0.8 million. The project will utilise advanced rock physics analysis, seismic inversion, and CSEM processing and inversion, integrated using RSI's proprietary WISE workflows to provide a more complete picture of the sub-surface.

Phase I of the project, worth approximately 25% of the total, will start immediately and complete within three months. Phase II is expected to commence following successful completion and client acceptance of Phase I.

Richard Cooper, Chief Executive Officer of RSI, said:

"It is gratifying that our demonstrated experience with the WISE integration of well, seismic and electromagnetic data offshore West Africa continues to secure repeat business from our clients. This prospect de-risking project will benefit from our rich seismic and petrophysics experience in this area and adds newly acquired CSEM data to provide an important additional fluid discriminator."
